

Paul Metzger, MD, Memorial Lecture

“Dr. Starling Loving, the Rock of Early Columbus Medicine”

Presented by
George W. Paulson, MD

Starling Loving, MD

Please join us for an informative evening about the life of Dr. Starling Loving (1827—1911), presented by MHC Scholar-in-Residence George W. Paulson, MD. Dr. Loving was one of the first important leaders of medical education in Columbus. The lecture will review central Ohio’s early medical history, draw parallels to current trends, and remind us of contributions by medical leaders such as Dr. Paul Metzger.

The lecture is given in memory of long-time MHC supporter and Advisory Committee founding member, Paul Metzger, MD (1925—2014), who had a great sense of admiration for Starling Loving and wished a lecture be held to highlight his significance to the medical heritage of the region.

This program is made possible through the generous contributions to the Paul Metzger Medical Heritage Center Endowment.
